When Hunter became the hunted: The police appeal picture we printed of Henry Hunter following the attack on Kingston Mosque

MOSQUE VIOLENCE YOB GETS TOWN BAN

19-year-old fined and given suspended sentence for his part in anti-Muslim disorder

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

A teenager has been spared imprisonment after being found guilty of violent disorder following an attack on a Kingston Mosque.

Henry Hunter, 19, was part of a group that walked to East Road on November 21, 2010, following a march against Muslim extremism.

Hooded men hurled beer bottles, bacon and sticks at the place of worship, and a sign on the front of the building was damaged.

Hunter, who handed himself in to police after an appeal was launched to find him, admitted being part of the group but denied taking part in the attack.

At his trial last month, he was convicted of violent disorder but acquitted of religiously and racially aggravated criminal damage.

At Kingston Crown Court on Monday, Hunter, from Ashford in Middlesex, was sentenced to six months at a young offender institution, suspended for 12 months.

He was fined £1,000 and given a four-month curfew order prohibiting him from leaving his home on Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights.

Hunter, who has since found work as a forklift truck driver, was also banned from Kingston town centre for a year, and ordered to carry out 250 hours of unpaid community service.

Before sentencing, Hunter's solicitor Michael Green highlighted the teenager's previous good character and the fact he had not been in trouble since the mosque attack.

Mr Green said: "This is a young man who handed himself into a police station after his picture was published in [Kingston Guardian's sister newspaper] the Surrey Comet on the same day.

"His attitudes have changed considerably, his personal circumstances have changed considerably.

"Things have changed in terms of his employment, and in terms of his attitude."

In April Alfie Wallace, 19, David Morris, 21, and Martin Pottle, 24, were jailed for their part in the mosque attack.

Sentencing Hunter, Recorder Fletcher said: "You have made important changes to your lifestyle and attitude in the past two years.

"I have felt able to take a different course in your case to the course taken regarding Mr Pottle and Mr Wallace."

He added: "In these circumstances I have taken what could be considered as an unusual course in relation to your sentence."

Cuts put fire engine at risk

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

One of Kingston's two fire engines could be lost under draft plans to cut millions of pounds from the emergency service's budget.

London Fire Brigade has drawn up several scenarios to save £65m over the next two years after being asked to make cuts by Mayor of London Boris Johnson.

Options include closing up to 21 London fire stations, losing 41 engines and shedding more than 1,000 firefighter posts.

The London Fire Brigade report said removing one of Kingston's engines would only mean a seven-second delay in arriving at fires.

But Liberal Democrat London Assembly member Stephen Knight, who sits on the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority (LFEPA), said: "An extra minute will mean twice the size of the fire."

Yusuf Timms, secretary for the Fire Brigades Union in south-west London, said: "Any cuts increases the risk to ourselves when we attend incidents, and to the public."

"They are gambling with our safety.

"We have been asked to make savings just like every other public sector body, but the banks get a huge bailout because the Government believes they are more important, but the fire service can be cut back."

The report used a computer modelling system to test the brigade's performance against various austerity measures.

In four of the six scenarios presented, Kingston would go from being a two appliance station to just having one.

London Assembly Member Stephen Knight said the cuts were unacceptable and called on the Mayor to find an alternative.

He said: "Every fire requires two fire engines, so if Kingston only has one it could be 10 minutes before an engine from the next closest station arrives."

London Fire Brigade Commissioner Ron Dobson said: "The brigade needs to make savings, but the full extent of those savings is not yet known so there are no proposals being made. Ongoing reports of individual stations closing are nothing but unfounded, sensationalised scare stories."

Conservative London Assembly member Tony Arbour said: "There are no proposals for fire station closures. The Fire Authority is an independent body. Boris Johnson has not ordered any closures. The role of the Mayor is to set the budget. It is up to members to decide how to meet this."

There are 169 appliances across 112 stations in the 33 London boroughs.

LFEPA devised several options that would cut between £25m and £50m from its budget, while largely maintaining average first response times between six minutes and second responses to eight minutes.

The six main options, and how it affects Kingston, are set out below. There is no mention of changes to New Malden or Surbiton.

Option 1 - £25m: 152 appliances at 95 stations. Kingston loses pump. First engine 5.59 minutes (three seconds slower). Second engine 8.58 minutes (26 seconds slower).

Option 2 - £25m: 154 appliances at 91 stations. Kingston loses pump. First engine 5.59 minutes (three seconds slower). Second engine 8.58 minutes (26 seconds slower).

Option 3 - £25m: 152 appliances at 95 stations with "borough rules" (ensuring boroughs outside target performance times do not get worse). Kingston not affected.

Option 4 - £25m: 154 appliances at 91 stations with "borough rules" (as above). Kingston not affected.

Option 5 - £50m: 128 appliances at 91 stations. Kingston loses pump. First engine 6.03 minutes (seven seconds slower). Second engine 9.05 minutes (33 seconds slower).

Option 6 - £50m: 138 appliances at 81 stations. Kingston loses pump. First engine 6.02 minutes (six seconds slower). Second engine 9.04 minutes (32 seconds slower).

The report stated: "The modelling work is not complete and should not be taken as representing final plans."

Boroughs to merge child services

Kingston Council has approved a merger of its children's services department with Richmond.

The scheme, Achieving for Children, was agreed by councillors on the people's services committee at Guildhall on Tuesday, November 27.

The proposal was passed in the shadow of July's shock Ofsted inspection, when Kingston's safeguarding services were deemed "inadequate".

Liberal Democrat council leader Councillor Derek Osbourne said: "We all know we were looking to do this over a long period of time, and if anything our progress was probably retarded rather than accelerated by the events of June and July and the Ofsted."

But opposition Tory members raised concerns over where the merger would take children's services in the future.

The children's services department may be turned into a social enterprise in the future, based on commercial principles and outside of local authority ownership.

The plan was approved unanimously and will now go in front of Richmond Council's cabinet for final approval.

Santa flew into town to switch on New Malden’s Xmas lights. NAZIA DEWJI reports

A switch in time for Christmas

Families lined New Malden High Street as they eagerly awaited the Christmas lights switch last Friday.

Earlier in the evening a children’s choir had entertained crowds with Christmas songs such as Jingle Bells and Rocking Around the Christmas Tree.

Proud grandmother Tokkie Gauche, of Howard Road, New Malden, said: “My granddaughter is singing in the choir so that’s really nice for me.”

The Salvation Army gave out cupcakes while elsewhere there was candy floss, popcorn and glow-in-the-dark sticks up for grabs. A sheep dressed as Santa could also be found wandering the High Street.

Resident James Evans, who had just moved into the area, said: “It is great for our kids. It might not be Regent Street but it’s home, New Malden.”

Imma Merino, 40, of Egmont Road, New Malden, had wrapped her eight-month-old daughter warm for the special occasion.

She said: “This is really exciting for me because it is the first time my daughter will get to see Christmas lights. She probably won’t remember but it is an important memory for me.”

Soon enough Father Christmas came down the High Street in a carriage with silver sparkling reindeer.

Each time he passed a light it was switched on, eventually leaving the entire High Street alight as he settled in to St George’s Square for a meet and greet with a queue of excited children.

New Malden Methodist Church held a Christmas fair after the lights switch on and children were able to make their own festive decorations and reindeer food.

Plans for another revamp of High Street were also exhibited on the night.

Signz of talent put troupe in spotlight

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

A hip-hop dance crew has managed to snap up this week's Brightest Spotlight of the Week gong for Kingston Spotlight.

Vital Signz won the borough's busking talent contest after performing four energetic dance medleys over the weekend.

The dance troupe is made up of adults and about 20 children, aged three and upwards, who live in Kingston.

Choreographer and owner of the group Carly Allen said: "It is fantastic news we won. Everyone has worked really hard and it was cold on the day."

"The kids will be ecstatic when they find out and so will their parents. They have done so well."

The group performed a hip-hop medley by artist Missy Elliot and the children also wowed Kingston shoppers with a routine about school life including dancing in the hallways, in the canteen and during break times.

A whole new line-up will be entertaining shoppers on

Hip and knee centre could change hands

Kingston Hospital may gain control of the UK's largest hip and knee replacement centre from Epsom as early as April.

The successful Elective Orthopaedic Centre (EOC) was opened at Epsom Hospital in 2004 by the Queen.

Kingston would take charge of its day-to-day operation, which includes overseeing its performance and quality of care, with the income, after costs, split between the partners Kingston, St Helier, Croydon and St George's. Geoff Martin, of London Health

Emergency, said: "The only reason you would consider passing it to someone eight or nine miles down the road is if you are paving the way for its destruction."

Kingston Hospital said the proposed changes would not affect patients.

Sheep to make town a close-knit community

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

A 30-strong family of fluffy sheep will be moving into windows and shops all over New Malden in the next few weeks.

As part of a new festive initiative by New Malden Methodist Church the cute knitted animals will be hidden across town.

Residents are encouraged to pick up a form from the High Street church that lists all the shops taking part in the Christmas trail.

It will then be down to these sheep-finding detectives to search for the cuddly sheep.

All investigative work must be handed in to the church ahead of its Christmas Eve service where those who have found all the sheep will be given a special prize.

Church administrator Sarah Moore, 47, of Matlock Way, New Malden, has been working on putting the clues together.

She said: "I have two teenage daughters who are really excited about doing the sheep trail. It is great because it is appealing to all ages. They should be quite easy to find."

"We have 30 businesses taking part so we hope it will be a success. The shops can choose their own names, but I am sure there will be a Sean the sheep somewhere."

Shops taking part include Costa Coffee, Colourflow Printers, Tudor Williams, Peacocks and Cancer Research as well as New Malden police station.

A police spokesman said:

"Kingston police are extremely excited to be taking part in the New Malden Methodist church festive trail."

"We hope that children will flock to New Malden police station and demonstrate the sheer determination necessary to find all 30 sheep."

Review to run again

Maternity and accident and emergency (A&E) units at Kingston Hospital could be back in the firing line following plans to rerun a healthcare review.

Earlier this year the Better Services, Better Value (BSBV) recommended A&E and maternity wards at St Helier Hospital be shut down.

But the scoring and panel process that has so far cost £2m will be re-run, following the collapse of a deal to merge Epsom Hospital with Ashford and St Peter's Hospital Trust, Chertsey.

A spokeswoman for BSBV said the review was necessary because the initial decision was based on St Helier being alone.

Clinicians will run the rule again over the four hospitals in Kingston, Croydon, Epsom and St Helier.

The BSBV board is set to meet in December.

Uplifting debut single? Boy George he's got it

In the culture club: Performer Mauro Dirago with Boy George

A Worcester Park resident is celebrating the launch of his debut single – penned by 1980s superstar Boy George.

King of Kings by Mauro Dirago was released last week, the first single from his forthcoming album, Rewind.

And the Italian-born singer songwriter, who moved to Kingston aged three, is hoping his collaboration with the former Culture Club frontman and Ministry of Sound DJ proves a hit with the record buying public.

The song was written by Boy George and Rob Davies, a former popstar with glam rock group Mud, who also helped compose Kylie Minogue's number one smash Can't Get You Out of My Head.

It is a potent musical combination, which Mr Dirago, 37, believes will help bring his music to a wider audience.

The former Richard Chaloner student said: "Fingers crossed, the plan is the singles charts.

"But the main thing we want out of this is awareness. If it charts that would be great, but really it's a kickstart to build up for

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

the album."

Mr Dirago, who has a 12-year-old daughter, Annalisa, has already played a few album tracks live on Robert Elms' BBC Radio London show.

Citing influences ranging from Elvis Presley and the Beatles to 1980s acts such as George Michael, Mr Dirago described his music as "retro and uplifting".

He said: "What you're going to get from the album is very much retro, everything from 60s to 80s.

"King of Kings is about a guy wondering what has happened in his life. He's had a relationship with a girl and she's gone off and had kids with someone else.

"But it's an uplifting song, about how, no matter what happens, you're still the king of kings and just keep pushing through.

"The whole record is about being uplifting."

King of Kings is out now on iTunes. His album is due for release early next year.

Groups remove objections over floating homes plans

by TOM BARNES

tbarnes@london.newsquest.co.uk

Controversial plans to build floating homes on the Surbiton filter beds site could be one step closer.

Natural England and Kingston Rowing Club (KRC) have removed their objections to the Portsmouth Road development, recently criticised by Kingston and Surbiton MP Edward Davey.

The sports club has lifted its opposition, having earlier raised concerns over safety, and has thrashed out an agreement with developers.

The environmental group was concerned development would disturb the Daubenton's bat, but relented after agreeing a deal with developers Hydro Properties.

As part of the agreement the company has agreed to build the car park and restaurant off the site and allow a bat expert to monitor a roost during construction.

In a letter to Kingston Council, Natural England wrote: "Based on the amended information provided, and further information provided by the applicant's ecologist

Filter beds site: Doug Williams and Jim Mulholland from the Environmental Dimension Partnership, which works for Hydro Properties regarding the timings of works, Natural England is now in a position to remove our objection.

"This is due to the key level of detail which has now been provided to account for these concerns."

Hydro boss Phillip Wallis described the lifting of the objections as significant and said he was looking forward to a decision in the new year.

He said: "Natural England's letter is very detailed and demonstrates it has considered the matter in huge detail and taken an informed decision to remove its objection – more consideration than it would normally give.

"Hopefully now planning officers at Kingston Council have complete confidence that there are no adverse ecological issues associated with this application.

"Now these river objections have been removed and Natural England has also withdrawn its objection I hope people can start to feel confident and realise what a fantastic project this will be."

Simon Tyrrell from Friends of Seething Wells said many groups still opposed the development including London Wildlife Trust, the London Bat Group and the Royal Parks, as well as Kingston and Surbiton MP Edward Davey.

He said: "Natural England has not supported Hydro's plans, merely put extensive conditions on its construction if it is ever approved."

Speaking on behalf of the River Thames Sports Alliance, Ian Pratt, said: "The scheme would lead to dangerous river traffic on one of the narrowest and busiest stretches of the Thames.

"The Blue Chip Stand-Up Paddleboard Club has joined us in opposing the plans."

School-run pool's future still unclear

Kingston Council has begun discussions with a Chessington school about what to do with the Moor Lane swimming pool site.

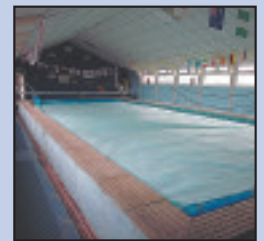

The community pool was due to close by Christmas, but closed down earlier this year because a faulty boiler was left unrepaired by Castle Hill School, which ran the 45-year-old pool.

The school has refused to speak about its future plans for the site or provide a detailed report on the repairs needed.

It also rejected business plans submitted by pool hirers to keep the pool open.

Hirer Andy Down said: "I am still passionate about getting the pool back open and available for the community. It is very frustrating information that is requested is not forthcoming.

"I have [submitted a]

Closed: Moor Lane swimming pool

Freedom of Information request.

"It is disappointing this is the route that has had to be taken."

Mr Down is receiving support from the Amateur Swimming Association which aims to support threatened pools.

A spokesman from the council said: "The council owns the land. We are in the early stages of discussions with the school."

Here are some of the many letters we have received on the troubled Kingston nightclub Oceana

Step up security

On the subject of Oceana, I was hoping the club manager would have stepped up security in the club to provide more safety for its customers.

I am a customer of Oceana and love the venue. Big, spacious, with friendly staff, somewhat friendly bouncers and great people.

With its vast amount of rooms it is a clubber's heaven. We are spoilt for choice in that place. I am deeply upset by the news of its closure as decent clubbers loved the place.

I do not dare step foot in McClusky's or Hippodrome and different types of people spread themselves across these three main clubs in Kingston.

Oceana attracts many people from across London, and Kingston as a whole could suffer in business terms due to the loss of Oceana fans.

I hope something can be done, such as bumping up security or retraining staff and bringing Oceana back to how it should be.

JONATHAN SPENCE-BELL
Via email

I would not go to Oceana again, even if you paid me

I am only 21 and was always in Oceana when I was 18 or 19.

I always had a good night but never felt that safe while in there.

In the past two years that place has got disgusting so I refuse to even go to Kingston anymore.

I went into Oceana back in May when I walked in and walked straight back out.

It used to be over-21s on a Friday but that changed – bad idea. Either way, it is meant to be somewhere adults go, but I know under-18s go there.

Which clearly also shows the bouncers do not do their jobs properly. All they care about is flirting with girls.

I am actually disgusted that after this stabbing, my little brother, who is nearly 19, tends to go there a lot.

He is harmless and would not hurt a fly, but the bouncers have now kicked him out twice for no reason.

In fact they kicked him out

Monday saying he had too much to drink. He had been in there 45 minutes, had had one drink and was sitting down.

They need to be shut down.

I would not set foot in there again if someone paid me.

VICKY BLACKWELL
Via email

It's not the club's fault

This is so stupid. Yes someone died there. It just happened to be in Oceana.

You cannot blame Oceana for what happened.

It is the biggest club in London, nothing like this ever happens there, yet we are going to let this affect all the people who work there and the people who still go there.

It is not fair.

ANNA HOLDEN
Via email

Most people in our town's clubs come from far away

It will be no loss to Kingston if this nightclub closes forever.

Richmond was like Kingston 20 years ago with an excessive police presence just to manage the overflow of street issues with the old Brollies nightclub complex.

They made a decision to clean out the nightclubs for exactly the same reasons – physical safety and effect on residents.

Kingston is now a town to stay away from and most people in these clubs come from far away.

Most Kingston youth have the sense to stay away (especially the boys who are threatened by the general nightclubbers).

It just is not worth it.

Let us get Kingston back for Kingstonians.

SIMON TEMPLE
New Malden and Kingston resident for 25 years

Technology is answer to fighting nightclub crime

I am not sure this is the right decision as the crime will just move to a different part of the city.

At least with the size of the club you are containing and patrolling a small area rather than if it closes and the crime goes further afield and is harder to track.

The answer would be to showcase better technology in crime fighting?

Perhaps have a process that means you take a photo of everyone that enters the club with a fingerprint device.

Prosecution of offenders needs to be to the full extent of the law too, so word of mouth means you really do not want to be stupid there.

ROB MCEWEN
Via email

Don't close

This is ridiculous.

Why close the club?

This is not the first stabbing in a club and if it had not happened in a club it would happen outside it.

Maybe they should put metal detectors in.

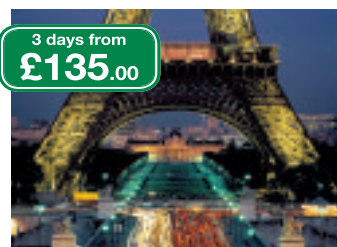

Tighten up the security and let the parties carry on.

I disagree with the licence being taken from Oceana. I can name and shame worse clubs.

Man's death 'unexplained'

by LAURA PROTO

laura.proto@london.newsquest.co.uk

A murder investigation into the death of a homeless man has been dropped by police.

The body of James Lambert, 33, was found by a police officer in Imber Cross, Thames Ditton, on the morning of Friday, November 23 – nine days after he had been reported missing.

A murder investigation was launched in the wake of the discovery, and two men aged 35 and 46 were arrested in connection with Mr Lambert's death.

Both have since been released without charge and the murder investigation has been dropped.

The Surrey and Sussex major crime team are now treating the death as unexplained.

A spokeswoman for Surrey Police said: "A postmortem examination of the body was carried out at the Royal Surrey County Hospital on Saturday, November 24, which was not able to establish a cause of death."

"Further tests will now be carried out."

Police confirmed that Mr Lambert was homeless but was from the Thames Ditton or Surbiton area.

Nearby residents have since described their shock at the grim discovery.

Pat Wilson, 66, of Summer Road, East Molesey, said: "It is horrific, especially for a 33-year-old who has not lived his life yet. Hearing about that, it makes you feel very uncomfortable."

Police are still investigating the circumstances behind Mr Lambert's death.

Anyone with information should call Surrey Police on 101.

Shopping-crazy mums and dads were allowed to leave their buggies in safe hands as they looked around Kingston town centre.

The buggy valet service may be introduced more regularly next year.

Domestic violence

A police officer has urged victims of domestic violence to come forward and seek help ahead of new stalking laws.

New legislation will see stalking offenders sent to prison for up to five years and given an unlimited fine in the most serious cases.

Jo Keogh, from Kingston police, has been working with victims of domestic violence for more than 25 years.

She said: "Stalking can be a problem for victims of domestic abuse."

"It can be a lot of different things that cause alarm and distress."

"We would encourage people to keep a record of any messages they get and to speak to us as soon as possible."

For advice, the One Shop is held every Monday at Kingsgate Church at 9.30am.

75,000 of our children will wake up homeless on Christmas morning. Yes, we're outraged too.

You won't see them on the street. They're hidden away – often in places like hostels and B&Bs. And it's destroying their health and their futures.

We saw a situation like this when we set up in 1966. But this is 2012 – and we're asking everyone who shares our outrage to help us.

Our Helpline will be open over Christmas and one call can be enough to find a child a home. But as the recession bites deeper, we're struggling to meet demand.

Sad end: Karen Burgess's cat Minnie

Cat mutilations linked?

Police are investigating two more possible cat mutilations after pet owners contacted the Kingston Guardian to report further cases.

Karen Burgess said she believed the death of 11-month-old kitten Alex, found decapitated in Iris Close, Surbiton, in October, could be linked to the death of her two cats.

In the past two years, her small black 11-year-old cat, Minnie, and its 13-year-old sister, Heidi, had gone missing from the family home, metres from Iris Close, in mysterious circumstances.

Minnie was never found, but the head of a cat was discovered in the grounds of nearby St Matthew's Church in Kingsdowne Road in Christmas 2008, while Heidi was found dead with her tail severed two years later, she said.

The Kingston Guardian passed the details of the two incidents on to the wildlife officer at Kingston police, who has promised to conduct further investigations.

Last week the force confirmed it had re-opened an investigation into the mutilation of a 19-year-old cat in 2011, bringing the total incidents reported in the borough to four.

Tenants left out of pocket after estate agent closes

An estimated £500,000-worth of tenants' deposits is believed to have gone missing following the abrupt closure of a Kingston estate agents.

JeJe Barons, in Kingston Hill, shut down suddenly at the end of October, as previously reported by the Kingston Guardian.

Now a letter from owner Manish Malek to the company's landlords has confirmed the business had ceased trading.

Three ex-employees – Jeffrey Hasnan, Karen Walker and Magda Schonwalder – have since set up a new business, Gateways Estates in Union Street, Kingston.

They told this newspaper they were still trying to find at least £480,000 of tenants' deposits, and said the figure could be more than half a million.

Mr Hasnan said: "Gateways Estates has been set up to help landlords with property management and recovering monies lost."

Charmaine Mace, who rented a property in Camel Grove, Kingston, for four years through JeJe Barons, is one of those whose deposit is yet to be repaid.

The 52-year-old, who has since moved to Tolworth, said she was owed £1,800 by the company.

She said: "When we first found out, it was a shock. I was more annoyed than anything. Estate agents have a bad enough reputation as it is without this."

Mrs Mace, who runs her own estate agents, A Property Cycle, said the responsibility to protect deposits ultimately fell on landlords.

She said: "We are lucky. The landlord we have is really working hard to pay us our deposit back, which some landlords won't do. Landlords need to make absolutely sure the deposit is protected. The landlords I look after take out insurance on deposits and also tenant's insurance." The Kingston Guardian has made several attempts to contact Mr Manek for comment, including visiting his last known address in Worcester Park where a new family had moved in.

FOREVER YOUNG

A childhood hero will be warming hearts by taking audiences on an exciting adventure all the way to Neverland this weekend, writes Nazia Dewji.

Amateur dramatics group St Paul's Players will perform the much-loved Disney tale of Peter Pan as their annual Christmas pantomime this year.

The show will raise money for the Royal Hospital for Neuro Disability – a charity close to the group's heart.

Hook resident Mark Haley received life-threatening head injuries after being attacked outside Tesco Express in Hook Parade in 2011.

St Paul's Player David Taylor says: "We have Peter Pan, Wendy, Tinkerbell – all the characters.

"We even have grandma Wendy taking part – she is 80-plus and will be introducing the story. Everyone is a child at heart and everyone loves a Christmas pantomime.

"I am very excited about our panto. It seems like a long time ago that we started rehearsing so we are really looking forward to it."

CAROL TIME: Enjoy an afternoon of Christmas carol singing with free mince pies and mulled wine for all at the Fircoft charity shop this weekend.

The Kingston Choral Society, Lady Immaculate Folk Group and the Angelpop Choir will all be performing.

● Christmas Carols, Fircoft charity shop, 426 Ewell Road, Tolworth; December 8, noon to 2pm; visit fircofttrust.org.

NEW SONGS: And Now We Are Even showcase new songs from their forthcoming album in their first live performances in more than two years at the Fighting Cocks on Sunday, December 9.

The Kingston metal-heads have promised to rock the Old London Road venue, with support coming from old friends Anonymous Tip.

● And Now We Are Even; the Fighting Cocks at 56 Old London Road, Kingston; free, Sunday, December 9; call 020 8974 6469 or visit the-fighting-cocks.co.uk.

DEREK NASH

Jazz sax

A leading British saxophonist is coming to Kingston this weekend.

Derek Nash will be at the Boaters in Canbury Park this Sunday, for the pub's usual weekend jazz slot.

Nash is the founder of award-winning group Sax Appeal, and is currently touring with the Jools Holland Rhythm and Blues Orchestra.

Catering for families as well as first-time buyers

Homes at new development in Teddington go on sale

A new development of three and four bedroom homes and apartments has just gone on sale at Wallis Mews, Teddington.

The development by Linden Homes features 19 three and four-bedroom houses, ideal for families, and 10 apartments which should appeal to first-time buyers and investors.

The development showcases stylish, contemporary designs, and follows on the heels of the sell-out success of another Linden Homes' collection, Sandy Lane, also in Teddington opposite Bushy Park.

Linden Homes South East managing director Steve Bangs, said: "We're delighted to be offering something new to families house-hunting in Teddington, which is a wonderful neighbourhood to set up home.

"Brand new family-sized homes are rare in the area so we're expecting a lot of interest from people who want the space and reassurance that comes from a new property which doesn't require months of work to live in.

"In the mix again there'll also be our customary attention to ensuring top quality too, so just as our Sandy Lane in Teddington proved very hard to resist, I think Wallis Mews will be exactly the same.

"With these contemporary-styled homes offering a variety of lifestyle options and enjoying superb specifications, I think they will grab attention far and wide and won't be available for long."

Prices will range from £399,995 for a two-bedroom apartment, to £774,995 for a four-bedroom house.

Ks' leaky defence still unplugged

Kingstonian's defensive woes continued with a 4-3 defeat at Canvey Island in the Ryman League Premier Division, despite the debut of former Ipswich Town defender Jerome Sobers.

A brace from Andre McCollin, pictured, and an own goal were not enough as Alan Dowson's men conceded their 12th goal in four games.

Ks also crashed out of the Surrey County Cup at home to Corinthian Casuals, going down 2-1.

They host high-flying Bognor Regis this weekend.

My belt: Kingston's Danny Parsons with the Queensbury Boxing League southern area lightweight belt he retained at the weekend

SP70769

Danny is a belter

Kingston's Danny Parsons is gearing up for a big 2013 after retaining his Queensbury Boxing League southern area lightweight title last week, writes Stuart Amos.

The 18-year-old beat Tony Clemmey with a unanimous points decision in the penultimate fight of the Edge of Greatness show in West Sussex – the climax to the Queensbury Boxing League season.

And Parsons, who fought off the effects of a stomach bug to step into the ring, is hoping the first defence of his crown will lead to bigger and better things come the new year.

He said: "It wasn't my best, but a win is a win.

"I was just really pleased to get that first defence out of the way, because it would have been disappointing to have lost the belt having only just won it.

"I would have preferred to have boxed a bit better, but I felt comfortable from the start and I knew I'd win.

"I'll fight again early next year and defend the belt a couple of times. There are a few other belts I want to win, so it is going to be a big year."

Parsons, who usually boxes as a featherweight, was struck down by illness ahead of last week's fight and lost between four and five pounds in weight.

He had not shrugged off the effects until three days after the bout and admitted he had been running on empty.

He said: "I hadn't felt great all week and I was still ill on the night of the fight.

"In my dressing room I was laid out on the bench when usually I'm bouncing off the walls.

"But I'm not one to pull out of a fight. I didn't do as well as I could have done, but if I'd been 100 per cent I would have won more comfortably."

Junior table tennis star knows tougher tests await in 2013

Giles makes his Marc-us

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Table tennis prodigy Marcus Giles waved goodbye to the youth ranks in style, but knows the hard work starts now.

The Kingston-based 14-year-old lived up to his top billing to win the National Table Tennis Championship cadet boys' singles title in Hatfield at the weekend.

The Hollyfield School star, seeded number one for the event, beat Lincolnshire's Tom Jarvis 11-9 11-13 11-7 11-7 in a thrilling final to secure the biggest win of his career.

Giles leaves the U15s age category and steps up to the U18s next year and was relieved to sign off in style.

He said: "This is my biggest win and it was a bit of a relief when I won really.

"I knew that if I just gave it my best then that should be enough to win.

"I have the masters tournament coming up next where the top 12 in the country play off against each other, so I have to train for that.

"Next year I'll be in the U18s for the nationals and will have to work hard to get into the top 12 for the U18s masters tournament.

"It is a big step up to play boys much older than me."

Giles could have added the doubles crown to his collection, but his rival Jarvis gained some revenge for his singles defeat as he and partner Luke Savill beat Giles and his team-mate Hugo Pang 11-9 11-8 10-12 6-11 7-11 to clinch doubles glory.

Giles said: "We were two games up and gave it away a bit. I don't know what happened."

Team GB stars are not secret to Surbiton success

Team GB Olympians may have come to the rescue of Surbiton Hockey Club's men and women at the weekend, but Georgie Twigg insisted the club is not reliant on their top stars, writes Stuart Amos.

London Games stars Rob Moore and Twigg produced a match-winning double act for their respective teams – both scoring the decisive goals in wins over East Grinstead and Olton and West Warwicks last month.

But 21-year-old Olympic bronze medallist Twigg insisted there was more to Surbiton than their Team GB connections.

She said: "There are internationals at the club but, at

Team effort: Surbiton and Team GB star Georgie Twigg

Surbiton, it is not about the individuals.

"There are regularly 25 to 30 players down at training for both the men and the women, which shows the depth of talent the club has.

"Everyone is fighting for their place and that forces everyone to work hard.

"It is good to draw on the experience of people like our international players, but it really is a squad effort."

Surbiton Ladies, in their first season in the top flight, remain in the Women's Hockey League Premier Division top four ahead of the Christmas break after Saturday's trip to Bowdon Hightown was postponed due to a frozen pitch.

Twigg said: "We've had a pretty good start to the season, but it is very tight at the top. We wanted to be in the top five before Christmas and staying there would be an excellent way to go into the break."

SPORTSbrief

FOOTBALL: Joe Hicks, pictured, and David Hodges got the goals that gave Corinthian Casuals only their second away win of the Ryman Division One South season. The 2-0 win at fellow strugglers Whitstable Town lifted them to 18th in the table. The Corinthians face another six-pointer this weekend at Walton and Hershham.

ATHLETICS: Phoebe Law, of Kingston AC & Polytechnic Harriers, finished second in 19 minutes, 29 seconds in the U17s at the Ladies Surrey League meeting in Nonsuch Park on Sunday – 14 seconds off top spot. In the U13s, club-mate Darcy Bourne (12.43) finished sixth. Meanwhile, the Kingston Energized 10k was won by Dale Clutterbuck in 32.34. Elsewhere, Neil Wellard (11.01) took second place in the second Epsom Downs league meeting, and club-mate Harry Reynolds (11.07) took third. Mollie Sullivan (12.23) won the girls' U13s, with Rebecca Keddl (13.29) the third girl home.

HOCKEY: Surbiton men just managed to finish their Premier Division clash at Loughborough Students for a 2-2 draw before the pitch became unplayable in the dropping temperatures. Rob Schilling and Rob Moore had Surbiton ahead twice only for the hosts to pull themselves level. The women's match away to Bowdon Hightown on Saturday was cancelled on Friday due to a frozen pitch.

SWIMMING: Tegan Wilcock (U9s), Jude Boden and Amy Das (10), Ollie Jeffery and Jenna Abbott (11), and Will Clark and Kristina Tolockaite (17s and over) were among the winners at the Kingston Royals Swimming Club champions 400m freestyle. Full results at kingstonroyals.co.uk.

RUGBY UNION: After their weekend break, Kingston travel to Croydon on Saturday for the resumption of Surrey Division One.
